

Barack Obama is now the forty-fourth president of the United States of America. I think he will make the United States peaceful. One reason I think he will make it all better is because of his speeches. In his speeches, he talked about the war in Iraq, the economy being too low, education, and health care.

I think President Barack Obama will make things wonderful. I am really happy and excited that he plans to end the war in Iraq. Wars are not good because things are getting destroyed and people are dying every day.

In these days, poor people do not have anything. This makes me sad. I think President Barack Obama will give these unfortunate people health care plans to help them because they can not help themselves.

I think President Barack Obama will fight to make people's lives better. If I was eighteen years old I would vote for him because I think he will do a super job. I hope everything turns out to be fantastic!
