

Our New President

Obama is the first African-American to ever become a president. He is the 44th president. His father is from Kenya, Africa. His father was an immigrant and his mother was an American. He has two daughters.

On January 20th around 7:00 to 8:00 p.m., one of the inaugural balls began. Obama was the guest star since he became the president around 11:40 a.m. Obama dance with other women at the ball. He also ate some fancy food. He got compliments about how he led the parade. Then he had a fancy dinner with some other important and rich guests.

Obama wants to change our power sources to solar, wind, and water. They will not pollute anything. Solar power can be used in factories because most factories are open during the day time. Wind power can be used in military bases because they are mostly in places that have a lot of wind. Water power can be used in underwater marine study bases, since they have plenty of water. All of these can be used at a water plant also.

Obama wants to end the war in Iraq. I think that Obama will stop the ships, tanks, submarines, and planes that are going to Iraq. Then he would suggest a peace treaty. He might offer a celebration at the White House for the peace treaty. Then he will tell the world about the party.

I think that Obama is going to be a good president since he is going to end the war and prevent thousands of people from dying.
