

Our New President

Name: Yves Chen 5th

The New president, Barack Obama is the first African-American president. Which makes me proud because he reminds me of Martin Luther King Jr. a hero. Obama promised that he would change America and make it better, but he said he needs our help to keep his promise.

Obama is a very kind person because he refuses to continue the war in Iraq and wants to have peace with the world. He was once a senator of Illinois. He delayed the National conversion to digital because he felt bad for the people without cable.

Obama is a very smart person. He graduated from Harvard Law School. When Obama was little, every morning, he would wake up at 6 o'clock and memorize what he had learned previously. I think that Obama was very intelligent because it must have been hard to become a president, especially for a black person. I think that president Obama is going to be a great president and stop the economic crisis.
