

I have a dream that everybody will stop littering. I had an idea that scientist will make robots, who will keep the earth clean by collecting all the garbage and turn it into bags.

The robots are solar powered. They don't use alot of electricity, so we don't use alot energy. We can use the bags to clean the earth. The world would be clean, but there would still be some littering.

I will make people put ^{cameras} around the city, we can see who littered and send them to jail. They will stay in jail for three days. I will make the robots collect water from the ocean. I will make the people who litter drink the ocean water.

If my dream comes true people will stop littering. Then the world would be clean.