

One day two children were playing outside. Suddenly a big storm came. It was such a wild weather that that they had to go indoors. In a couple of minutes they went outdoors again and right next to a tree was a curved leaf that looked familiar. "I know what this is," said Kayla. "It's a Shamrock!" said Mike. The kids decided to keep the Shamrock and use it for show and tell at school. At school the next day, Mike went to the blackboard and drew a picture of a Shamrock. "I found a Shamrock yesterday next to a tree near my house," said Mike. The class clapped and the next person came up to the blackboard. On the way home, Mike and Kayla talked about the Shamrock. "Do you think the Shamrock is a leaf?" asked Mike. "Yes," said Mike. "I will take this to the beach with me," said Mike. And so they went to the beach and were happy all along.
