

Once upon a time, there was an old man named Sham Rock. He had bright yellow hair and ugly blue skin. However, the community Sham lived in liked him with blue skin. They would enjoy him better if he had white skin.

One day, Sham decided to take a walk in the forest. He took a dictionary to put leaves through the pages. He collected many leaves when he was in the forest. He liked the green leaf best. So he thought "maybe I could find out what kind of plant the green leaf is."

He went to the science laboratory. He asked the scientists there to find out what kind of plant the green leaf is. "It is no kind of plant" said the scientist finally. Sham was so surprised, he fainted. The scientists there thought, maybe we could name the plant after Sham and call the plant "Shamrock."